where is joern?

© Petit Versailles for LAST CALL

a world moves thru realizes threatened beauty within fragile & fleeting;hard to put down roots.

gardens are unique parts of cityscapes sprouting & shaped from abandoned lots.
natural public spaces perceived as private;
a problem of perception. i.e. ownership

Worlds Meet

Now & Then

FRISE / LAST CALL at Le Petit Versailles Garden and Goethe Institute Wyoming Building in New York City October 2009

The passage of time
is line
a between encircling
points.

degrees of darkness
illuminate setting songs good night to morning

Le PetitVersailles, a project of Allied Productions, Inc. an artist managed non-profit arts umbrella organization , was created in 1996 with community neighbors as a public garden located at 346 East Houston St. on the Lower East Side.

As well as promoting the multiple use of NYC urban public spaces particularly gardens, it is dedicated to fostering the interest of all segments of the community in the arts, broadening and enriching the general public through performances, screenings, workshops.

Themes include the environment, urban landscapes, progressive social issues and the site specific nature of the garden itself. Outdoor screenings and temporary installations that include new technologies,internet and interdisciplinary approaches

www.alliedproductions.org petitversailles@earthlink.net